AlfaOBD is based on the tools of the open-source computer algebra system Maxima. The software is written in the Maxima programming language, which provides a clear syntax and good compatibility with Maxima. The programming language is the Maxima ( and OBD/ScanToolbox ( interfaces. The scanner interface is based on the Internet ScoutTool ( This toolbox was extended with new functions to work with the new concepts of the AlfaOBD. AlfaOBD is the result of cooperation with the automaker Fiat, who provides us with the valuable software product. Because of confidentiality requirements, we cannot reveal more about the development of the software. About AlfaOBD ===== AlfaOBD is the software for the diagnosis of vehicles of the carmaker Fiat / Alfa Romeo / Lancia. The version 5.0 allows an update of the old algorithms. The software is based on the tools of the open-source computer algebra system Maxima ( The source code of the computer algebra system was modified and used to implement the diagnosis tools for AlfaOBD. Maxima is supported by a lot of companies. As the Maxima libraries are released under the MIT License, the open-source community can use them freely and commercially. Thus we have the important advantage that Maxima contains an extensive range of diagnosis tools, which we can use for our purpose without any limitations, such as the company's license. The application programming interface (API) Maxima is used to integrate our algorithms with the scanner interface of the software. The output of the AlfaOBD software is a scan report, which can be used by the OBD2 professional to analyze the fault. The AlfaOBD application software is licensed by us under the GNU General Public License. Our experience with this software was very positive. The price was right, the support was good, and the support staff were very helpful. License ===== The software is licensed under the GNU General Public License. This license means, that the free software is open to everyone and that the license can be used by everyone. This is why the 82157476af
